

#UNTEILBAR – FOR A SOCIETY BASED ON JUSTICE AND SOLIDARITY

Call to Action: #unteilbar Demonstration on September 4, 2021 in Berlin

Political and social injustice have worsened dramatically in the past year. On a global scale, the pandemic has brought societal problems into sharp focus. In Germany, too, an ever increasing number of people are falling into poverty or fear for their economic future. At the same time, the consequences of climate change are becoming increasingly perilous. While group-based hatred and racism are on the rise, people are dying every day at EU borders.

The time is now to take to the streets in the spirit of #unteilbar: Let us put an end to the social divide and the escalating climate crisis! Let us strive for a society in which all people can live on their own accord, without fear, and in which the welfare of all is paramount! Before the upcoming elections, let us send a clear message: We will not tolerate any false divisions between social justice, human rights and climate protection.

Things need to change.

The Corona crisis further deepens the divide between the rich and the poor. People working low-paid and insecure jobs or without any income are not only more strongly affected by the social and economic consequences of the crisis. They also face a heightened risk of severe illness when contracting a COVID-19 infection. Meanwhile, rent is rising rapidly. Many are forced to live in cramped apartments or in shelters. Refugees are relegated to camps. Migrant workers, including in the meat processing industry and the home care sector, frequently lack any form of social protection. Widespread staffing shortages in healthcare and nursing and the associated unacceptable working conditions are the result of decades of commercialization. And it is first and foremost women who have to cushion the blow of the crisis through paid and unpaid care work. We all feel the consequences of such policies: They increase inequality and divide society. Racist, anti-feminist and anti-semitic violence is on the rise.

Increasing inequality is also visible at the international level: Instead of making vaccines a public good – as was promised last year –, the richest nations have taken the lion's share and patents remain in the hands of a small number of major corporations. Even though climate change is accelerating, vital socio-ecological reform is being sacrificed on the altar of national egoism.

We demand new political priorities:

- We want a society without poverty in which everyone's basic needs are met. Decent working and living conditions, education, healthcare and housing cannot be left to the market!
- We want policies that ensure those who have accumulated excessive wealth pay for the costs of the crisis. For top-down redistribution!
- We want a democracy addressing everyone's needs that is built by all. For a gender-equal, anti-racist and inclusive society in which everyone can participate equally that affords all children a safe and nurturing childhood!
- We fight structural racism and any kind of cooperation with the extreme right, and we stand for anti-fascist solidarity in society – in both East and West. We are united against racism, anti-semitism, anti-Muslim racism and anti-feminism!
- We fight for the human rights of every human being, for the right to asylum and a just solution to the climate crisis – at home and abroad. #unteilbar means: human rights are indivisible!
- We demand global justice in COVID-19 vaccine access!

For a new democratic beginning of the many!

We are organized in anti-racist groups, the hospital and care movement, tenant initiatives, human rights organizations, in anti-fascist groups, trade unions, charitable organizations, feminist and queer groups, groups for digital democracy, the anti-war and the climate movement. We are or aren't religious, BIPOC or white, with or without recent family migration history, young and old, with disabilities or without, with different genders and sexual orientations. Together, we will take to the streets on September 4, 2021 in Berlin: #unteilbar for a society based on justice and solidarity – the time is now!
